UNEASY LEGISLATORS
OFFER TO TELL ALL
ONLY TO BE REPULSED

Proposals Indicate That Panic
Has Taken Hold of Solons.

Dictagraph.

GVERNOR BEFORE GRAND JURY

Blair Also Appears to Tell of Attempt to Legislate Him Out of Office--Detective Says Ohio Bunch
Worst He Ever Tackled--Operated
Gangs and Made Specialty of Jackpots--All but One Member of Steering Committee Resigns.

Columbus, O., May 3.—Several assistants went to Prosecutor Turner and Attorney General Harrison to tell the grand jury about the methods in the house of senators, but their offers were rejected. These proposals were made as indication of a panic among senators and a desire on the part
to get in early for an immunity bath.

Before the grand jury there appeared a number of prominent officials, including Governor Harmon, and a witness room was crowded with
lives, lobbyists and corporation representatives. The latter purpose how they were held up or how they were made to have them "fork money to get bills through committees and then passed or to the reverse process brought about the passage of bills.

Blair of Portsmouth, who led the recent campaign which led to the disfranchisement of voters in Adams county for their hands, was another witness.
He is pending in the assembly to be Blair out of his present judicial district and out of a place on bench. Rumors have been circling of wrongdoing in connection with the measure.

The house every member of the steering committee, against which resignation has been directed, resigned except Dr. George B. Nye, who has had detectives arrested for paying him bribes.

Numbers who resigned were Russell, Evans of Stark, Calling of Preble and Gussweiler.

Burns Appears on Scene.

Detective Burns, head of the organization which has ferreted out the money, was at the courthouse for time. This is the most corrupt city he has ever been called to investigate, he told reporters.

Developed when Governor Harmon opened an envelope supposed to be the bribe money which Nye received, that the bills were marked ones which the detectives paid to Nye. The $200, was correct, however,
as developed that while Nye
had the money about three months, he did not turn it over to the Vining until last Thursday.

A significant indication of the unpopularity of the measure came when the assembly came when the
which has been reactionary
blocked almost every effort to secure pro-
legislation, but through two of Harmon's pet bills—the measure of a central board of control for institutions and the bill providing for the direct nomination of University senators according to the plan. The reactionary senators are betraying a sudden anxiety
to get out of the house.

to be submitted to the
this week will show that members of the legislature
organized into gangs or groups
at jackpots were the popular with them.

As can be learned now, the gangs contained anywhere
from one to eight members, who co-operated with one another in soliciting and securing bribes from corporations and men who were trying to get legislation.

The gangs were bipartisan.
The bandle in exchange for the distinction was made between Democrats and Republicans,
and their votes all looked alike.

records of a conversation that occurred in Detective Harrison's room in the Chittenden hotel relative to the exchange of "business" between house and senate crooks. A senator was telling Harrison how they worked with certain house members, and the Burns dictagraph transmitted all he said to Prosecutor Turner's stenographer.

"That fellow is perfectly safe," said
the senator to Detective Harrison, referring to a house member. "He works with us all the time and looks after matters for us in the house, and we look after things for him in the senate." The senator is a Republican and the house member a Democrat.

Another senator, whom Harrison says he paid $200 for working for a certain bill, spoke as follows into the dictagraph:

Solicits For Friends.

"There's a couple of other members
who always work and vote with me
on all bills, and we split three ways
all money we receive. I'd like to get some money from you for them."

In the house there is a member who posed as a distributor of bootlegclaiming that there were between 20
and 30 members who worked with him and looked to him for their pay.
The detectives say he is a liar and that he is so crooked that he would not play fair even with his fellow crooks. They say he would take money for a large number of legislators and then keep most of it for himself.

The story goes that in the senate
the different bandle gangs had working agreements by which they divided the lobbyists for their prey.

Governor Appeals to Langdon.

"After all, we are all Buckeyes, and when there is something wrong in the old state, party lines must be cast
aside and the honor of the old state upheld." This is the way Governor Harmon prefaced an interview with Representative Lawrence K. Langdon,
Republican floor leader of the house.

Langdon had been called to the governor's office to discuss the developments in the legislative bandle crises. The governor asked the Republican floor leader for his assistance in clearing up the situation.

"I agree with you, governor," said Langdon. "The mask of respectability ought to be torn off every man who is selling his honor, influence

WORST OF THEIR KIND.

Columbus, O., May 3.—Detective
W. J. Burns, in discussing the crafty disfigurement in the Ohio legislature, said:
"Of all the heinous investigations
with which I have been connected,
the evidence in this is the most conclusive, the most unapproachable, and was gotten up by the most up-to-date methods. The Ohio legislators are the most persistent grafters I ever saw in my

Hanley Stands by His Friend.

Dayton, O., May 3.—"We stand by you," says Democratic State Chairman Hanley in a telegram sent to Senator George Cetone of Montgomery county. Hanley's telegram follows: "Your friends at home believe you to be innocent and will stand by you to the end. Your interest will be guarded carefully and every arrangement completed to insure fair and just treatment. Be of good cheer and never doubt our loyalty and affection."

Murder Mystery Cleared.

Fowler, Ind., May 3.—Mangled and partially decomposed a body, supposed to be that of Joseph Kemper,
a farmhand, was unearthed on the farm of John Poole by a searching party headed by Poole's son, Emory,
and a warrant was issued for the arrest of the elder Poole on the charge of murdering Kemper. Several years ago, it was reported to the authorities, Charles Work and Charles Mack, employed by Poole, disappeared mysteriously. Further search of the farm is to be made on the theory
that their bodies may be found.

Ohio voters by the passage in the senate of the Wyman bill, which has already passed the house and now goes to the governor. The vote was 18

Captain John M. Bowyer, superintendent of the Naval academy at Annapo-academy, and threatens a congressional investigation into the matter. Miss Beers is a daughter of Professor H. A. Beers of Yale university. A slighting remark was made about her by someone at the academy following her presence at a hop there recently, and the secretary of the navy directed Bow-

to be relieved of his position, and he will be succeeded on May 15 by Captain
John H. Gibbons, a member of the general board of the navy.

them and they will report to the di-

Teachers' Special Ran Into Section
Where Track Partially Repaired.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—As a result
of the wreck at Martin's Creek there
is said to be a possibility of a serious
shakeup in the management of the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania railroad. It is understood that the real cause of the disaster was a
fault on the part of the proper officials of the company to announce the approach of the special train. Workmen repairing the tracks where the accident occurred are said to have
been wholly unaware of the presence
of the special in their vicinity, and
employees declare that the rails were
actually being taken up when the engine bore down upon them. Some of the workmen, it is said, even had
narrow escapes themselves from injury.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—Governor

a believer in local option himself, he

ing All Phases of Pending Measure.
Arguments Attract Little Attention.

Washington, May 3.—A round of
speeches on the farmers' free list bill
was the order of the day in the house. Representative Stimus of Tennessee discussed the bill from what
he called a "common sense, practical
standpoint," demanding to know what
his Democratic colleagues were going
to do in the way of reducing the annual expenditures of the government
to conform with the reduced income
resultant from the free list bill.

Representative Burke of South Dakota was unkind enough to refer to Speaker Clark's first speech in the
house, when he expressed a desire to
see all the customs houses torn down.

"You have been false prophets in
the past, my Democratic brethren,"
said Mr. Burke. "For 50 years you have been able only in one four-year
term to exercise full control of the affairs of this nation, and that was
from 1893 to 1897. Now, with that to your credit, it seems to me that before you go on making many more
predictions and prophecies, you had
better demonstrate that your theories
are practical and have to your credit
a record that you can point to, to prove that you can do what you say
you can do."

The Democratic side might have
suffered more severely from this incident if there had been more than a dozen members of that faith on the floor at the time. The attendance during the day was wretched, practically
all of the speakers delivering their
broadside to empty benches.

Representatives Mondell of Wyoming, Rucker of Missouri, Byrnes of South Carolina, Leever of South Carolina, Burns of Texas, Smith of Michigan and Tilson of Connecticut also
spoke, covering all phases of the
pending issue.

Beers is a daughter of Professor H. A. Beers of Yale university. A slighting
remark was made about her by someone at the academy following her presence at a hop there recently, and the secretary of the navy directed Bow-yer to send a letter of apology which he did. Now Bowyer has asked to be relieved of his position, and he will be succeeded on May 15 by Captain
John H. Gibbons, a member of the general board of the navy.

Guard Detail Picked

Columbus, O., May 3.—The third detail of Ohio national guard officers to go to Texas to witness the army maneuvers were selected by Adjutant General Weybrecht. There are 11 of them and they will report to the division commander May 15. They include the following: Major Charles

Becht, Columbus, First infantry; Major Cliffe Deming, Ada, Second infantry; Captains John E. Gimpling, Dayton, Third infantry; Louis H. Houser, Chillicothe, Fourth infantry; Harry W. Ulrich, Youngstown, Fifth infantry; George W. Stockman,
Napoleon, Sixth infantry; T. T. Court-
right, Lancaster, Seventh infantry; William E. Walkup, Akron, Eighth infantry; and Q. A. Kullish, Cleveland,
battery A, Lieutenant J. H. Bradshaw, Cleveland, engineer corps, and Major J. W. Murray, Marion, medical corps.

Wreck Is Explained

Teachers' Special Ran Into Section
Where Track Partially Repaired.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—As a result
of the wreck at Martin's Creek there
is said to be a possibility of a serious
shakeup in the management of the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania railroad. It is understood that the real cause of the disaster was a
fault on the part of the proper officials of the company to announce the
approach of the special train. Work-
men repairing the tracks where the
accident occurred are said to have
been wholly unaware of the presence
of the special in their vicinity, and
employees declare that the rails were
actually being taken up when the
engine bore down upon them. Some
of the workmen, it is said, even had
narrow escapes themselves from injury.

Replies To Preacher

Wilson Says Local Option is Not Political Party Issue.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—Governor
Wilson is determined that his future
political career shall not be embarrased by the injection of the liquor question if he can help it. Although
a believer in local option himself, he does not think it should be injected as an issue into the platforms of either of the political parties. The governor has thus expressed himself
in a letter to the Rev. Thomas B.
Shannon, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New Jersey.

Lincoln Goes Wet.

Lincoln, Neb., May 3.—After being dry for two years, Lincoln went wet
in the municipal elections by about 750 votes.

Tells Them to Get a Record Before
Posing as Prophets and Show People They Can Perform What They Promise—Many Other Representatives Engage in Discussion, Covering All Phases of Pending Measure.
Arguments Attract Little Attention.

Washington, May 3.—A round of
speeches on the farmers' free list bill
was the order of the day in the house. Representative Stimms of Tennessee discussed the bill from what
he called a "common sense, practical
standpoint," demanding to know what
his Democratic colleagues were going
to do in the way of reducing the annual expenditures of the government
to conform with the reduced income
resultant from the free list bill.

Representative Burke of South Dakota was unkind enough to refer to Speaker Clark's first speech in the
house, when he expressed a desire to
see all the customs houses torn down.

"You have been false prophets in
the past, my Democratic brethren,"
said Mr. Burke. "For 50 years you
have been able only in one four-year
term to exercise full control of the
affairs of this nation, and that was
from 1893 to 1897. Now, with that to
your credit, it seems to me that before you go on making many more
predictions and prophecies, you had
better demonstrate that your theories
are practical and have to your credit
a record that you can point to, to
prove that you can do what you say
you can do."

The Democratic side might have
suffered more severely from this indictment if there had been more than
a dozen members of that faith on the
floor at the time. The attendance during the day was wretched, practically
all of the speakers delivering their
broadside to empty benches.

Representatives Mondell of Wyoming, Rucker of Missouri, Byrnes of
South Carolina, Leever of South Carolina, Burns of Texas, Smith of Michigan and Tilson of Connecticut also
spoke, covering all phases of the
pending issue.

Ohio Gets Taste of Snow.
Bellefontaine, O., May 3.—Snow fell in Logan county to the depth of half an inch in some localities.

Rebels Put To Flight

Garrison at Ojinaga Lift Long Siege of Mexican Town.

San Antonio, Tex., May 3.—Confirmation of the reported relief of the Mexican town of Ojinaga, which had withstood a two-months' siege by insurrecto bands, has come in the shape of an official report by Captain Andrew E. Williams, in command of a detachment of the Third cavalry at the Texas town of Presidio, across the Rio Grande from Ojinaga, which was received by General Joseph W.
Duncan. Not only has the siege of the town been lifted, but the investing forces under General Sanchez
have been driven fully 50 miles down
the river.

WITHOUT HAT, COAT OR VEST M'BEE STAYS OUT ALL NIGHT

Said to Have Choked Young Wife at Bloomington---Returns This Morning
and Escapes Before Officers Arrive.
Brother of Man Held for Stabbing
Ralph West.

Clyde McBee, an elder brother of Jesse McBee, the young man who is now in the county jail charged with the attempted murder of Ralph West, of Jeffersonville, who now lies at death's door with little hope of recovery, is a fugitive from justice in this county.

Clyde McBee is wanted at Bloomington for a vicious assault upon his wife, a pretty young woman of 18 years, whom McBee married last fall and promised to protect, love and cherish. McBee is being sought by Marshal Hal Worrell, of Bloomington, and if captured will suffer for his actions.

McBee and his wife, who have been making their home with McBee's widowed mother in Pike county, near Morgan, but who have recently been visiting McBee's brother, Pearl Mc-Bee, two miles west of Jeffersonville,
was the guest of his uncle, Tom Leeth and family, of Bloomington.
Leeth lives in the John Noble property near the Howland mill.

Some time during Monday night McBee is alleged to have choked and beat his wife in a shocking manner,
and would not desist until Mr. Leeth called Marshal Worrell about three o'clock Tuesday morning. Marshal Worrell did not arrive upon the scene until nearly daylight. Just as McBee fled through the back door,
leaving his hat, coat and vest behind.

Just to make things interesting Marshal Worrell fired a shot or two in McBee's direction and he literally dug up the earth in making a getaway. No more was heard from Mc-Bee until this morning, when he appeared at the Leeth residence in Bloomington where his wife still remained, and remained until Mr.
Leeth again notified the marshal,
and he again made his escape.

Why McBee made the assault upon his wife, we have been unable to learn, but that it was entirely unprovoked is claimed by the Leeth
family.

McBee will probably be captured,
as it is not believed he will leave the Bloomington neighborhood, and Marshal Worrell is on the lookout
for him.

Before her marriage, Mrs. McBee was Lora Smart, of near Bainbridge,
and is said to be a rather delicate
young woman and rather pretty.
McBee, like his brother in the jail at this point, is of slight build.

Just the Man He Wanted.

During the retreat of the British in
Charleston in the war of the Revolu-

British when he suddenly found himself surrounded by the enemy and an American within forty paces. He did not hesitate, but, seizing an officer
by the collar and wrestling him away
from him by main force, kept his body
as a shield, while under a heavy fire
he rapidly backed off from the perilous
neighborhood. The frightened British
officer when thus summarily captured
began immediately to enumerate his titles: "I am Sir Henry Harry, degenerant general, captain in the Fifth
second regiment," etc.

"Enough," interrupted his captor.
"You are just the man I was looking for." And he marched him off.

Just the Man He Wanted.

During the retreat of the British in Charleston in the war of the Revolution, Manning, a noted soldier of the legion, was in hot pursuit of the flying British when he suddenly found himself surrounded by the enemy and not an American within forty rods. He did not hesitate, but, seizing an officer
by the collar and wrestling his sword
from him by main force, kept his body
as a shield, while under a heavy fire
he rapidly backed off from the perilous
neighborhood. The frightened British
officer when thus summarily captured
began immediately to enumerate titles:
"I am Sir Henry Barry, deputy adjutant general, captain in the Fifth
second regiment," etc.

"Enough," interrupted his captor.
"You are just the man I was looking
for." And he marched him off.

MILLWOOD PLEADS WITH COUNCIL FOR ANTIQUATED LIGHTS

Desiring to Avoid Disgracing Greater Washington, Hesitates on Eve of Erecting Lanterns on Poles, While "Suburb" Writes.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Washington C. H. O., May 3, 1911.
Dear Council:—Please send some of your antiquated lights to the new additions. We are in Greater Washington and try to be strictly up-to-date by obeying all the city laws, and paying city taxes. We do not wish to disgrace you by erecting lanterns on poles, but, dear Council, we are "afraid to go home in the dark." We know in the heart of the city there are as high as "eight houses in the dark" but with us there are whole sections and no lights at all. People complain of not finding the key-hole—why, we can't find our houses.

SUBURB.

UNCLE SAM MAY RESUME COINAGE OF ODD COINS.

If a bill introduced by Representative Shepard, of Texas, becomes a law the government will begin the coinage of a two and one-half cent piece. Naturally at the first though it appears that there is no special demand for such a coin, but reflection shows the contrary to be true.

Without doubt the fact that the odd half-cent goes to the seller is an important factor in the high cost of living problem. At the bargain sales the half-cent figures prominently in the price list and the enthusiastic shopper does not consider that she has no half-cent to make the exact change and must give the merchant 38 cents for the 37 1/2 he charged her. In the course of a year each patron gives the merchant a dollar or two for which nothing was received. The aggregate in all lines of trade is a vast sum contributed because change could not be made.

Want Baker Line Extended Via Sedalia

South Charleston is agitating the extension of the Baker Interurban line from that place to this city via Sedalia, in lower Madison county, and Mr. Baker has been given assurance that liberal support will be given him if this is done.

Should the line be constructed through Sedalia, it would enter this county and parallel the Prairie pike into this city. It is not probable that this will be done, but there is little question but what a liberal support could be obtained in South Charleston.

Speaking of the proposed extension and of the Baker road in general, the South Charleston Sentinel says:

"One fact has been brought to the surface, however, that has made the business men of Charleston think very seriously, and that is that the traction since its completion has been a drain on Charleston's business interests and offers nothing in exchange. If the traction, as it first contemplated had gone through to Washington, it would have opened up a territory south of us which would in a measure have made up for that which it took away. As the matter now stands much of the trade which would normally remain in town goes to Springfield.

"The prevailing sentiment among the business men of the community is that they will get back of Mr. Baker in his effort to extend the road, and to especially arouse their enthusiasm, it might be a good plan for Mr. Baker to digress from his original plan and swing over to Sedalia. Then there would be the liveliest kind of an interest taken locally in the further extension of the line. Sedalia has practically no railroad service, and the intervening territory traversed would be of great value to traction interests. If Mr. Baker will give the local business men assurance that his line will take that route, he can depend upon the united support of every interest in town—including this paper."

MILLWOOD PLEADS WITH COUNCIL FOR ANTIQUATED LIGHTS

Desiring to Avoid Disgracing Greater Washington, Hesitates on Eve of Erecting Lanterns on Poles, While "Suburb" Writes.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Washington C. H. O., May 3, 1911.

Dear Council:—Please send some of your antiquated lights to the new additions. We are in Greater Washington and try to be strictly up-to-date by obeying all the city laws, and paying city taxes. We do not wish to disgrace you by erecting lanterns on poles, but, dear Council, we are "afraid to go home in the dark." We know in the heart of the city there are as high as "eight houses in the dark" but with us there are whole sections and no lights at all. People complain of not finding the key-hole—why, we can't find our houses.

SUBURB.

UNCLE SAM MAY RESUME COINAGE OF ODD COINS.

If a bill introduced by Representative Shepard, of Texas, becomes a law the government will begin the coinage of a two and one-half cent piece. Naturally at the first thought it appears that there is no special demand for such a coin, but reflection shows the contrary to be true.

Without doubt the fact that the odd half-cent goes to the seller is an important factor in the high cost of living problem. At the bargain sales the half-cent figures prominently in the price list and the enthusiastic shopper does not consider that she has no half-cent to make the exact change and must give the merchant 38 cents for the 37½ he charged her. In the course of a year each patron gives the merchant a dollar or two for which nothing was received. The aggregate in all lines of trade is a vast sum contributed because change could not be made.

Wilmington Planning Sanitary Sewage System

The Wilmington Council has declared its intention of providing a sanitary sewerage system, and an election for a bond issue covering the amount is expected to be called soon.

At the last meeting the Council passed a resolution reading:

"Resolved, By the Council of the Village of Wilmington: That it is the sense of this body to take the first step, which is the procurement of plans and specifications looking toward a proper sewerage system; and, further, that the Clerk be, and he is

Want Baker Line Extended Via Sedalia

South Charleston is agitating the extension of the Baker Interurban line from that place to this city via Sedalia, in lower Madison county, and Mr. Baker has been given assurance that liberal support will be given him if this is done.

Should the line be constructed through Sedalia, it would enter this county and parallel the Prairie pike into this city. It is not probable that this will be done, but there is little question but what a liberal support could be obtained in South Charleston.

Speaking of the proposed extension and of the Baker road in general, the South Charleston Sentinel says:

"One fact has been brought to the surface, however, that has made the business men of Charleston think very seriously, and that is that the traction since its completion has been a drain on Charleston's business interests and offers nothing in exchange. If the traction, as it first contemplated had gone through to Washington, it would have opened up a territory south of us which would in a measure have made up for that which it took away. As the matter now stands much of the trade which would normally remain in town goes to Springfield.

"The prevailing sentiment among the business men of the community is that they will get back of Mr. Baker in his effort to extend the road, and to especially arouse their enthusiasm, it might be a good plan for Mr. Baker to digress from his original plan and swing over to Sedalia. Then there would be the liveliest kind of an interest taken locally in the further extension of the line. Sedalia has practically no railroad service, and the intervening territory traversed would be of great value to traction interests. If Mr. Baker will give the local business men assurance that his line will take that route, he can depend upon the united support of every interest in town—including this paper."

THE SHEEP AND HIS WOOL.

While if not the most important item contained on the tariff schedules, at least the most talked of item in by far the greater portion of the United States is wool.

Ever since tariff was talked we have heard of the tariff on wool. There has been more resort, both by the advocates of a high protective tariff and the out and out free traders as well as the tariff for revenue only adherents, to wool schedules to prove their argument than any other one item in the long schedules.

Almost any tariff theory could be, it seems, and has been proven through all these numerous tariff campaigns by its effect on wool which has been and is yet the great "just take for instance" article of all the campaign spell-binders.

It is not strange therefore to find that in the tariff discussions now going on all over the country, wool is frequently appealed to as the prove anything item and in its effect upon which, the tariff is good or bad.

In the West and Northwest the production of wool statistics are being subjected to a new use which bids fair to rival if not to exceed the vast amount of labor imposed upon these statistics by the tariff discussion.

Sweeping reductions in freight rates on wool produced in the territory stretching from the Canadian boundary to the Mexican border and west from the Missouri river to Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Baltimore and other eastern and Atlantic seaboard points are sought in the proceedings just instituted before the Interstate Commerce Commission by the National Wool Growers' Association, of which Frank R. Gooding, former governor of Idaho, is president.

This proceeding promises to be one of the most important petitions ever presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The total production of wool in the United States for 1910 was 336,896,903 pounds, of which 70 per cent. was produced in 11 of the Pacific and Northwest and Southwest states, and 80 per cent. west of the Missouri river. Practically all of this product finally lands in Chicago, New York, Boston or far western wool markets and the wool grower has to stand the transportation cost.

The wool produced in the western country is sold in the condition it is sheared and is called "wool in the grease", by which is meant wool from which foreign substance has not been removed. The trade prefers to buy wool in sacks rather than in bales, as the sacked wool admits of ready inspection and grading.

It is claimed that the railroads have a sort of a superstitious reverence for the classification they have placed on wool and because of this they are prepared to wage battle to prevent any change in classification, fearing that should wool be reclassified it would open the subject for a general reclassification of the thousands of other articles enumerated in the railroad classifications, wool being considered the "keystone" in the classification scale, just as it is the keystone in tariff schedules.

The plea of the carriers is the old, old cry of water competition, when the fact is that no wool is raised along the ocean borders. Practically all of the wool is grown in the interior, hundreds of miles from the coast. The flock masters therefore claim that the excessive rates charged for the transportation of this product over the rate as fixed at the ocean line is arbitrary and unlawful.

The wool growers claim that statistics will show that in the last 15 years the shrinkage in sheep of the world has amounted to 40,000,000 head, while the population has increased 100,000,000.

Of course a determined fight, which promises to continue as long as the reduction or regulation of freight rate agitation is on and this fight it would seem has just been entered upon not only by the wool growers of the west but the manufacturers and producers of all articles in every section of the country.

With the passing to a considerable extent of the meek and lowly sheep from this section of the country as the land becomes more valuable for farming purposes, our people have in a measure ceased to think so much about the wool schedules and the statistics on wool.

When tariff legislation and consequently the numerous and heated discussion with reference thereto, apparently near its end, people were quite naturally allowing themselves to believe that less would be said about wool. But here now comes the rate classification on the great transcontinental railroads and wool is the keystone in the argument of both parties to that great big question which is still in its infancy.

In addition to furnishing the material for our good clothes, our blankets, and so on, too numerous to mention, the sheep add his wool furnish us statistics galore by which can be proved or disproved, according to arrangement, some of the most profound governmental question.

POETRY FOR TODAY

NEIGHBOR MINE.

There are trash-cans in our city,
 Neighbor mine;
 Don't you think it is a pity,
 Neighbor mine,
 That we do not take more care,
 To put all our rubbish there,
 And all paper that we tear,
 Neighbor mine?

Do not drop the fruit you're eating,
 Neighbor mine,
 On the sidewalk, sewer, or grating,
 Neighbor mine.
 But lest you and I should quarrel,
 Listen to my little carol:
 Go and toss it in the trash-can
 Neighbor mine.

Look! Where'er you drop a paper,
 Neighbor mine;
 In the wind it cuts a caper,
 Neighbor mine.
 Down the street it madly courses,
 And should fill you with remorse,
 When you see it scares the horses,
 Neighbor mine!

Paper cans were made for papers,
 Neighbor mine;
 Let's not have this fact escape us,
 Neighbor mine.
 And if you will lend a hand,
 Soon our city dear shall stand
 As the cleanest in the land,
 Neighbor mine.

A Helping Hand.

After the stout woman had left the car a young man exclaimed excitedly, "She has left her bundle," and then he added resolutely, "I will take it to her." Seizing the package, the sterling youth leapt from the car in the middle of the block.

"Hey, lady!" he shouted, rushing back to her with the bundle in his outstretched hands. "You left this, madam."

"Tain't mine," she answered. "It belongs to the big colored man that was asleep in the corner."

The car was three blocks away and going farther.

"What in the world shall I do?" said the sterling young man.

"If I was in your place," the stout woman replied, "I would surrender myself to the police and telephone for a smart lawyer."—Newark News.

His Punishment.

A homely, hard featured, elderly temperance speaker of the feminine persuasion, in the course of a lecture before a somewhat mixed audience, found occasion to say:

"Friends, as I passed along the street at an early hour this morning I saw lying in a drunken stupor, amid the ooze and slime of the gutter, a poor, fallen, besotted fellow being. No good Samaritan came his way; the passers-by hurried on with merely a curious glance and then left him to his shame. But as I paused beside him as he lay the thought came to me that, fallen as he was, that man had perhaps a wife, a mother, a sister, who loved him. So, kneeling, I brushed aside the stains from his face and smoothed the matted hair back from his brow and, dear friends, kissed him."

Thereupon from the rear of the auditorium came the sympathetic comment of an interested hearer, "And you served him just right!"—Harper's.

A Comforting Bridegroom.

Louis Agassiz, the naturalist, spent the evening of the day he was married in his laboratory as usual. He retired after his newly found wife was in the realm of dreams, bristling to his bedroom two very choice specimens of the snake family which he had been studying and was still engrossed in. Forced to part with them for the night, he looked about for a suitable place to leave them and finally laid hold of his wife's stocking as a convenient receptacle.

The next morning when Mrs. Agassiz rose she cried, "Louis, there's a snake in my stocking! What shall I do?"

"A snake!" yelled Agassiz, now fully aroused. "One snake. Heavens, where's the other one? I put two in there."

His Arm—

It was the young man's first appearance at the festive board of his adored one's parents. Everything passed off harmoniously until Grace's seven-year old brother broke the blissful silence by exclaiming:

"Oh, ma, yer oughter seen Mr. Jackson the other night when he called to take Grace to the drill. He looked so nice sittin' 'longside of her with his arm—"

"Fred!" screamed the maiden, whose face began to assume the color that is calculated to enrage a bull, quickly placing her hand over the boy's mouth. "Yer oughter seen him," continued the persistent informant after the embarrassed girl's hand was removed, "he had his arm—"

"Fred!" shouted the mother as in her frantic attempt to reach the boy she upset the contents of the teapot in Mr. Jackson's lap.

"I was just going to say," the half frightened boy pleaded, between a cry and an injured whine, "he had his arm—"

"You bad boy," thundered the father, "get out!"

And the boy did so, exclaiming, "I was only going to say Mr. Jackson had his army clothes on, and he can't say he hadn't."

McNamara's Finger Prints As Evidence

Sent East at Request of Detective Burns.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—The supervisors of Los Angeles county set aside $10,000 on the requisition of District Attorney J. D. Fredericks, to be used in prosecuting the three men now prisoners in the county jail charged with dynamiting.

Finger prints made by J. B. McNamara at the request of the district attorney were sent east. What the purpose is the prosecutor declined to say. It is surmised finger prints were found after some of the dynamiting jobs in the east, in which Orville E. McNamara says he and McNamara participated. The district attorney admitted the request for them came from Burns.

Leo M. Rappaport, general counsel of the structural iron workers, held a conference with John J. McNamara in the county jail. He refused to go into details about the conference, but expressed an opinion that a motion for a change of venue would not be pressed. "I am confident the men will receive a fair trial in this city," he remarked.

That Clarence Darrow will come to Los Angeles when needed is another assertion the Indianapolis attorney made. "There has never been any discussion between Mr. Darrow and the labor leaders as to the fee he will receive for his work," Rappaport added.

J. E. Timmons, organizer for the iron workers here, received a telegram from Seattle stating that the Seattle labor council had voted $50,000 for the defense of the McNamaras.

Commenting on the alignment of the labor unions on one side and the National Erectors' association on the other, Rappaport said:

"Labor is not on trial only as the National Erectors' association tries to place it on trial. Of course when that is done, labor will fight back. This case is simply a big criminal trial, and labor's stand is taken because it has been thrown out by the prosecution that not only these three men, but labor as well, is on the defensive."

Two Killed in Wreck.

Richmond, Va., May 3.—A dispatch from Alderson, W. Va., states that the Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train known as the F. F. V., bound from New York to Cincinnati, jumped the track near McKentrie, W. Va., and the engineer and the fireman were instantly killed. The express messenger, mail clerks and several passengers were slightly hurt.

WARNING TO RAILROAD MEN.

E. S. Bacon, 11 East St., Bath, Me., sends out this warning to railroad men: "A conductor on the railroad, my work caused a chronic inflammation of the kidneys, and I was miserable and all played out. A friend advised Foley Kidney Pills and from the day I commenced taking them, I began to regain my strength. The inflammation cleared and I am far better than I have been for twenty years. The weakness and dizzy spells are a thing of the past and I highly recommend Foley Kidney Pills." Blackmer & Tanquary.

HEALTH DEFENSE

This is the time of year that we are compelled to defend ourselves against germs and diseases. It is the time when the accumulated debris of winter affords a breeding place for the germs of disease. Cellars, sinks, closets and all dark and damp places about the premises should be thoroughly disinfected.

HOW FIRE STARTED

Card Players Dropped Match in Bangor Hayloft.

Bangor, Me., May 3.—A Sunday poker game played in a hayshed caused the fire that swept Bangor, the "Queen City of Maine," leveling almost 400 buildings, causing the loss of two lives, rendering thousands homeless and entailing a money loss conservatively estimated at approximately $4,000,000. A longshoreman told the city authorities that the holocaust was caused by one of a number of men playing poker in Green's hayshed dropping a lighted match on the floor. The loose hay at once burst into flame and in a moment the interior of the place was ablaze.

Dietz and Family On Trial.

Hayward, Wis., May 3.—John Dietz, the defender of Cameron dam, and his wife and son were placed on trial jointly charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Hart. Dietz was his own lawyer, with Elmira Dietz, who helped her parents in their battle against 150 deputies, at the press table reporting the trial for some Wisconsin papers, and with the balance of the family as spectators.

Hyde Resigns His Office.

New York, May 3.—Charles H. Hyde resigned as city chamberlain a few hours after he was taken into custody on an indictment for receiving a bribe. Mr. Hyde made a statement in which he said he was quitting his job in order not to embarrass Mayor Gaynor. District Attorney Charles S. Whitman got the news at his home and expressed surprise.

Ticket Agent a Suicide.

Cincinnati, O., May 3.—Charles W. Hartman, 37, city passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, was found dead in his room at the Burnet House. He ended his life by shooting himself through the temple. The revolver was still grasped in his right hand when his body was found. Hartman had been suffering from melancholia.

Fear Leads to Death.

Hamilton, O., May 3.—Fearing he was being pursued by a railroad detective, Tom Higgins, 38, jumped from a boxcar in a Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton freight train into a small creek near here, and was instantly killed.

Dynamite Unearthed.

Bellefontaine, O., May 3.—Dynamite in a quantity sufficient to wreck the building was found hidden under the floor of the township house at Zanesfield, when workmen were engaged in placing a new floor in the building.

OHIO HIGH SCHOOLS HAVE MADE WONDERFUL INCREASE IN FIFTY YEARS

Number of High Schools Has Increased
From Forty in the United States in 1860
to Nearly One Thousand in Ohio in 1910--Requires 3500 Instructors and Number Rapidly Increasing.

During the past fifty years the strides made in Educational lines in the Buckeye State have been truly remarkable, and Ohio is now classed with one of the best educational states in the Union, and her students have gone forth all over the land, rendering a good account of themselves wherever they have gone.

In High schools the state has gone forward by leaps and bounds, and from 1860 when there were only 40 High schools in the United States, the number has increased to over 1,000 in Ohio alone at the present time. This information is given out in a bulletin just issued by the Ohio State Department of Education.

In 1865 there were 175 High schools in Ohio and now there are almost 1000. The pupils in these schools number 75,000, and it takes more than 3,500 teachers to instruct them.

The bulletin shows that the vocational movement is taking strong hold in Ohio. Sixty-four high schools have manual training, a gain of 40 per cent. over the preceding year, and 48 have domestic science, a gain of 85 per cent. over the year before. There are 30,000 boys enrolled in the manual training schools, and 16,000 girls enrolled in the domestic science schools.

The agitation for reform and readjustment of the schools to the industrial life of the community is no longer looked upon as a fad. The organized education forces, state and national, are moving in the direction of industrial and commercial education.

The recognized high schools are classified as follows: First grade, 433; second grade, 265; third grade, 296; total, 994.

Pictures are given in the bulletin of "type" high schools. The new Hughes high school in Cincinnati is one of those shown. It was completed in 1910 at a cost of more than $750,000, including equipment, and is declared to be the finest school of the kind in the middle west.

The Grove City high school is shown as a fine type of a village district school. It has an auditorium with a seating capacity of 600 and a large gymnasium in the basement.

Sabina Enforcing Street Working Law

Down in Sabina the law providing that all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45 shall work two days on the streets, is being enforced, and it is said that more than one reluctant citizen has been escorted before the mayor for non-compliance with the law.

Sabina should have some good streets now, for the main street has been a joke for a long time, and the enforcement of the law is commendable.

Unusually Large Number of Eggs Sold

Art B. Fletcher, living near Austin, probably holds the record for the largest number of eggs disposed of in one week, the product of his own hens. A short time ago Mr. Fletcher sold to Asa Murry, driver of the F. M. Kissing huckster wagon, Good Hope, 34½ dozen of eggs in one week, all of the eggs not over seven days old.

In addition to this five hens were set on 15 eggs each, and the family of five used several dozen eggs for the table. The eggs brought 15c per dozen. We have been unable to learn how many chickens Mr. Fletcher keeps, but from the production of eggs, half of the Ross county hills must be covered with his fowls.

LARGE CROWDS VISIT

BAKER ADDITION.

Last Saturday and Sunday at least one hundred men and women visited the new allotment laid out by the Ohio Land Company of Akron, Ohio. The company refused absolutely to sell any lots to those present who desired to purchase, on the ground that they have their special time to start the sale which they will advertise extensively, so that all may have an equal opportunity to secure a choice lot. Expressions of surprise were heard on all sides by the visitors at the excellent judgment used by the company in laying out the addition.

The lots are young farms. Some lots have a frontage of seventy-five feet and a depth of over two hundred feet; and although the prices could not be learned we have it on good authority that the company has decided to put the price down on all the lots in order to make this a record breaking sale.

Nearly everybody who has seen the lots talked of buying one or more on the opening day. No doubt many buyers will be disappointed, as the plat on record at the Court House only shows eighty-six lots. Of course the company could have made a great many more lots if they had cut them up smaller, but they evidently plan to give people their money's worth.

Circleville Wants Noon Train Replaced

The business men of Circleville are very desirous of having the noon train on the C. & M. V. replaced for the same reason that the business men of this city do, but whether a united effort will be made to obtain a return of the train, it is not stated.

New Holland wants the train also, and it is believed that if Washington, Circleville, Williamsport and New Holland would unite and make a strong demand for this train, it might be replaced. One man who is in a position to know, states that the train was rapidly becoming one of the best on the road.

The largest business men should call a meeting and make an attempt to secure the return of a train that brought many thousands of dollars in trade to this city yearly. Will they do it?

VIOLENTLY INSANE MAN BRANDISHING KNIVES HOLDS CROWD AT BAY

Standing at bay with two sharp bread knives tightly grasped in his hands, Clarence Bates, 22, son of Benjamin Bates, a grocery keeper at Zimmerman, Greene county, resisted all attempts at capture for more than three hours a few days ago.

Four New Houses In One Block

Four new houses are to be erected in one block on South Main street this summer.

Mr. B. F. Davis has sold the full lot adjoining his residence property to Mr. Howard McLean, who re-sold one half lot to Mr. Harry Townsley and will build a bungalow for himself and wife on the other half.

Mr. Townsley is planning the erection of a handsome two-story house.

Mr. Art Murray bought from Mr. Davis forty feet of the lot on which the Davis residence stands to build a two-story home.

Mr. W. A. Tysor also sold 40 feet of his lot to Mr. A. W. Massmore, who will build a two-story house.

All of these residences will be thoroughly modern in style and conveniences, and will make a very attractive square in that residence district.

That Bell Buzzard Is Heard Again

Regarding the old "bell buzzard" the Hillsboro Dispatch says:

"This famous old bird was seen some time ago by O. R. Keeler on the Mrs. W. C. McCoppin farm. It was late in the day, when this buzzard in company with three others, circled over the field some time, the jingling of the bell was plainly heard. The bird then took a western course and disappeared. As it turned toward the sun, the bell could be plainly seen. Mr. Keeler's family also saw and heard it. This farm is one and one-half miles east of Carmel."

Points for Mothers

Truth in Children.
Little by little children must be educated in the matter of truthfulness, and in no way can they be taught more convincingly than through the lives of their parents. If the mother is herself truthful, if she never promises her children anything that she cannot or does not fulfill, if she is accurate in every detail of speech and they learn to see through her what truth is and the villainy and sin of a lie, they will come into a very clear and permanent understanding of the truth.
They must understand truth if they are to reap any spiritual benefit from speaking it. To avoid falsehood through fear of detection and subsequent punishment is far more creditable.
If a child is to understand the truth he must be taught it, and who is there better fitted to teach him than his mother?

An Amusing Game.
Most mothers are sometimes at a loss for new ways of amusing the little ones. The game of "hold fast" is one that they will appreciate. The only requisite is a number of lengths of tape, all of the same number of inches, or if the tape is not at hand cut silesia or any cotton goods into narrow strips and use this. The person who leads the game holds one end of each of the tapes. The opposite end of each strip is held by some other player, and all players other than the leader form a semicircle, which the leader himself must stand facing. When the leader says "hold fast," all players must let go their tapes, and when he says "let go!" they must, on the contrary, hold them fast. Any one obeying the commands literally, as some are sure to do, must pay forfeits.

Developing the Muscles.
Prevention is better than cure, and it is generally easier than cure too. The prevention of ungraceful figures and of deformities which lead to disease rests chiefly upon simple exercises, which, without fatiguing the child, will develop and strengthen its muscles, expand its chest, straighten its figure and interest its mind.
This last is most necessary. There are few things children hate more than the old-fashioned dreary "calisthenic exercises," which are almost as penitential as the exercise of the prison yard. The mind affects the body. The dull routine of calisthenics will not produce the same beneficial effect as games which have for their object the interesting of the mind as well as the development of the body.

The Terrors of the Tub.
Many an infant cherub has been known to set up a loud wail when put in its tub for a bath, and its people have grown to dread the hour of the daily bath.
A writer declares that many babies are frightened at the tub because they feel insecure and slip around in it and that this fright does not wear off until the little one is well grown.
She suggests that a thick towel be placed in the bottom of the tub. Baby will be delighted, she says, and even the most timid will lose all fear when he finds he does not slip about.

Round Backs.
A child compelled to sit still for a long time in one position—during lesson hours, for instance—is very apt to contort its body into injurious postures, and if this goes on unheeded, especially if the child is at all weak, some kind of permanent and mischievous result is almost sure to follow.
It is in this way that round backs, which contract the lungs and often lead to consumption, curvature of the spine, pigeon chests and such very common deformities, frequently arise.

Sunshine for Childhood.
Every mother should give due thought to the situation of the rooms she is to use for the children. The day nursery should always be on the south side of the house, where part of the day it is flooded in sunshine, and where the north winds do not reach it. The night nursery should always be the quietest room in the house, and should face north, for babies should have absolute quiet to sleep in and plenty of cold fresh air.

Pulling the First Teeth.
A child's first tooth should not be pulled until it fairly drops at the touch. If it is pulled from the jaw before the permanent tooth is well formed the jaw shrinks. When the permanent tooth appears, being larger than its predecessor, it does not find the proper room which growth of the jaw would otherwise give, and the result is ugly, overlapping teeth, so disfiguring, so painful and so costly to remedy.

Emergency Night Light.
If you run short of night lights try this: Take a wax candle, cover the top, which has been burnt level, with a thin layer of salt, leaving only the blackened end of the wick exposed. Light the candle, and it will give a faint but steady light all night.

Not Such a Goose After All.
Geese can tell their eggs from others that are very much like them. A goose that was sitting on several eggs was supplied by the daymaid with an equal number of duck eggs. She thought that so large a bird ought to be able to hatch a goose from her own. But the next morning the girl found all the duck eggs on the ground. They had been rolled out of the nest and placed there without breaking. She pointed this out, but it was of no use. The goose had nothing to do with them and deposited them on the ground. Fearing lest she should be thought to be in disgust, the daymaid had to go to persevere with the eggs, and Madam Goose came off triumphantly from the contest.

The Largest Drum Ever Baked.
The largest cake ever baked was ordered by Augustus, king of Sicily, when entertaining Pompey. With a king of Prussia, about 1770. Five thousand eggs, one ton of milk, one ton of butter, one ton of meat and thirty-six bushels of flour, besides flavors and trimmings, were used. All around the immense outside ran a trimmings of biscuits and glazed bread nuts.
Eight horses were used to draw it into camp on a special wooden platform made for the purpose with a tower raised over it. It was cut by a carpenter with a gigantic knife, a knife of such size that the handle rested on his shoulder as he used it.
As for the eating, it is sufficient to say that it was brought into a camp of 30,000 soldiers.

About Drums.
Drums have always been made by native races, who use them to help drive away evil spirits, to terrify their foes, to make their men fight better and to summon friends together. They are of all sizes, sorts and shapes. In China drums are made of baked clay, bowl shaped, with a skin stretched across the top. A drum from Central America is cone shaped, over four feet in height and is hollowed out of a solid block of wood. An Ashanti drum is shaped like a large bottle. A Mandingo drum resembles a tenpin upside down, and a Friendly island drum, between four and five feet high, is like a hollowed post with a head of leather not more than six inches across.

Conundrums.
Why is an egg like a colt? Because it is of no use until it is broken.
Why is a defeated army like wool? Because it is worsted.
What money is best liked by ministers? Matrimony.
Why should Benjamin marry Annie? Because he would be Bennied and she Annie-mated.
What is the difference between shooting at a man and killing a hog? One is assaulting with intent to kill and the other is killing with intent to salt.

When is a large hall clock at the head of the stairs dangerous? When it runs down and strikes.

A Doll Catastrophe.
The doll hospital in St. Louis was burned a few nights ago, and all the sick and crippled dolls were burned too. There were 125 dolls in the hospital, they say in St. Louis, and those of them that could talk probably shrieked at the tops of their voices for help, but no one heard them. Most of the dolls could not save themselves because they had broken arms or legs or necks or all the sawdust had come out of them. They had to stay and be burned, and all the little girls that had sent their dolls to the hospital got up funeral ceremonies as soon as they heard the dreadful news.

London Gulls.
In London, by the river Thames, a man walks up and down the embankment with a tray piled high with small paper bags full of food for the seagulls. Visitors to the city enjoy spending a penny for a bagful of food to feed the gulls with. The birds fly around the buttresses of the bridge in thick flocks, uttering hoarse cries.

TELEPHONE GIRL'S VERSION.

A telephone girl who had studied elocution was called on to give a reading, and this was the manner in which she gave "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of death
Rode the Six-hundred—O
"Forward the Light Brigade!"
Charge for the guns!" he said.
Into the valley of death
Rode the Six-hundred—O.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them,
Volleyed and thundered,
Stormed at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell,
They that had fought so well,
Came through the jaws of death,
Past the walls of death,
All that was left of them,
Left the Six-hundred—O.

When can their glory fade?
Oh, the wild charge they made!

Sailor Shocks a Sympathizer.
A passenger on a transatlantic liner had an experience recently which was calculated to make her believe that a seaman is not apt to waste many thoughts on his personal troubles.

The seaman who brought the traveler to this opinion had, the second day out, a fall which resulted in a bad cut on the head. She was most solicitous in her inquiries as to his welfare when she saw the captain that night and would undoubtedly have continued her sympathy had not a rough sea called to mind her own suffering.

Four days later, however, when she emerged, white and weak, from her stateroom, she suddenly remembered the poor sailor. In the course of the day she encountered him with a strip of plaster on his forehead.
"How is your head?" she asked kindly as he passed by her bent on some duty.
"Went by south, ma'am," was the reply.—Harper's.

The End of the Story.
There is an amusing anecdote about King Louis of Bavaria in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences. "Resolving to relieve the needs of one of his poor but brave ski-de-camps, he sent him a small portfolio, bound like a book, in which were deposited 500 crowns. Some time afterward he met the officer and said to him, 'Ah, well, how did you like the new work which I sent you?' 'Excessively, sire,' replied the colonel. 'I read it with such interest that I expect the second volume with impatience.' The king smiled, and when the officer's birthday arrived he presented him with another portfolio similar in every respect to the first, but with these words engraved upon it: 'This book is complete in two volumes.'"

They Traded Horses.
"Two Oklahoma palefaces once hunted in my camp," said an Indian who had a high opinion of the business astuteness of white men. "They spent the evening with me and, over the fire and drewwater, they began to barter and trade and to make deals and dickers."

"Finally Bill said:
"Sam, let's trade—my new gun for your roan."
"It's a go," Sam agreed. "The trader, a go. Shake on it, partner."
"They shook hands. Then Bill said with a loud laugh:
"Sam, I've traded ya this time. My boss is dead. Died yesterday."
"So's mine dead," said Sam. "Died this mornin'! And, what's more, I've took his shoes off!"

There are 250 publications of all kinds in Chile, twenty being published in Valparaiso and twenty-one in Santiago. Of these four are printed in English and two each in German and French. El Mercurio is the oldest publication in the country, having been published for eighty-three years.

The quantity of asphalt taken from Pich lake, Trinidad, which covers an area of 100 acres, during 1910 exceeded that of any previous year. At the present rate of operation the surface level is lowered about six inches a year. The depth of the deposit of asphalt over the center of the lake is unknown.

The name Grinspan, which has become prominent because of a recent breach of promise case, was one of a group of "house names" quoted some time ago in an article on German proper names. Grinspan is the German for vermin. The other names mentioned were: Todleben (deathcliff), Rindskopf (bullhead) and Stubbebruch (Roomstroke).

What the Elephant Had.
Money is the root of all evil, they say, and certainly it proved uncomfortable enough for Hattie, one of the elephants in the zoo at Central park, New York. Hattie was punished for the sin of covetousness. She limped when she walked, and the keeper thought that her corns must be hurting her. He cut off the corns, but Hattie still limped, and then he poked about in her foot to find what was wrong. He found several things—a lot of little pebbles, a good sized marble and a silver quarter. The coin had made all the trouble, because it had been wedged into a tender part of the foot.

Warning to Philatelists.
Postage stamp collectors are warned from Berlin against buying stamps which purport to be old Thurn and Taxis issues. A scandal has been caused by the fact that the Thurn and Taxis administration, which formerly had a monopoly of the mail service in Germany, has lately printed several hundred thousand stamps from old plates. The stamps are distinguished from genuine old issues only by a couple of letters on the back, which can easily be washed off. German stamp dealers are indignant at what they consider an unworthy trick, as they hold large quantities of old Thurn and Taxis stamps, which have now lost all their value. As the Thurn and Taxis administration was liberally compensated by the German empire for surrendering the mail monopoly this attempt to earn a more or less honest penny through stamp issuing is regarded with disapproval.—New York Sun.

Sailor Shocks a Sympathizer.
A passenger on a transatlantic liner had an experience recently which was calculated to make her believe that a seaman is not apt to waste many thoughts on his personal troubles.

The seaman who brought the traveler to this opinion had, the second day out, a fall which resulted in a bad cut on the head. She was most solicitous in her inquiries as to his welfare when she saw the captain that night and would undoubtedly have continued her sympathy had not a rough sea called to mind her own suffering.

Four days later, however, when she emerged, white and weak, from her stateroom, she suddenly remembered the poor sailor. In the course of the day she encountered him with a strip of plaster on his forehead.

"How is your head?" she asked kindly as he passed by her bent on some duty.

"West by south, ma'am," was the reply.—Harper's.

The End of the Story.
There is an amusing anecdote about King Louis of Bavaria in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences. "Resolving to relieve the needs of one of his poor but brave old-camps, he sent him a small portfolio, bound like a book, in which were deposited 500 crowns. Some time afterward he met the officer and said to him, 'Ah, well, how did you like the new work which I sent you?' 'Excessively, sire,' replied the colonel. 'I read it with such interest that I expect the second volume with impatience.' The king quirked, and when the officer's birthday arrived he presented him with another portfolio similar in every respect to the first, but with these words engraved upon it: 'This book is complete in two volumes.'"

They Traded Horses.

"Two Oklahoma palefaces once hunted in my camp," said an Indian who had a high opinion of the business astuteness of white men. "They spent the evening with me and, over the fire and drawwater, they began to barter and trade and to make deals and dickers."

"Finally Bill said:

"Sam, let's trade horses—my horse for your roan."

"It's a go, Sam agreed. 'The trade'

a go. 'Shake on it, partner.'

"They shook hands. 'Then Bill said with a loud laugh:

"Sam, I've cheated ya this time. My horse is dead. Died yesterday."

"So's mine dead," said Sam. "Died this mornin'. And, what's more, I've took his shoes off."

There are 200 publications of all kinds in Chile, twenty being published in Valparaiso and twenty-one in Santiago. Of these four are printed in English and two each in German and French. El Mercurio is the oldest publication in the country, having been published for eighty-three years.

The quantity of asphalt taken from Pitch Lake, Trinidad, which covers an area of 100 acres, during 1910 exceeded that of any previous year. At the present rate of operation the surface level is lowered about six inches a year. The depth of the deposit of asphalt over the center of the lake is unknown.

The name Grunspan, which has become prominent because of a recent breach of promise case, was one of a group of "puzzler names" quoted some time ago in an article on German proper names. Grunspan is the German for verdimen. The other names mentioned were Todleben (deathlike), Rindskopf (bullhead) and Stubebruch (roomstroke).

What the Elephant Had.

Money is the root of all evil, they say, and certainly it proved uncomfortable enough for Hattie, one of the elephants in the zoo at Central park, New York. Hattie was punished for the sin of covetousness. She limped when she walked, and the keeper thought that her corns must be hurting her. He cut off the corns, but Hattie still limped, and then he poked about in her feet to find what was wrong. He found several things—a lot of little pebbles, a good sized marble and a silver quarter. The coin had made all the trouble, because it had been wedged into a tender part of the foot.

DO YOU WANT POWER AMONG MEN?

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

YOU want power, power over your fellows, and the consciousness of efficiency in yourself. You do not want to be weakling, one of the dulling. You want to be in some small way, at least, a leader, a distinct recognizable factor among men.

And then you want amusement. You dread the lonely, lagging hours when you are left to your own resources with no one to talk with and no new novel to thrill over.

Now you have in you an instrument that can furnish you with both of these desired things, power and unfading pleasure, and that instrument is your own mind.

Perhaps you have been accustomed to regarding your mind as just a part of you, like your hand or foot, that you have to take it as you find it, and to put up with it as it is. If it is weak you are sorry, if it is strong you are glad, but in either case you are used to thinking that you cannot help yourself. A poor memory is a defect that your Maker is to blame for and must stay with you your life long; likewise a dullness at figures, or an incapacity to learn languages, or a native inability to appreciate art or music.

Mind Capable of Change.
In all of which opinion you are precisely wrong. And I know of nothing that will be of more use to you, to improve your ability and to increase your joy in life, than to believe, now and at once, to accept the truth that your mind can be changed, molded, and altered to be whatever you wish.

Upon how to accomplish this let me give you a few hints.
In the first place, the greatest means of developing your mind is regular repetition. More than study or fixity of attention it is repetition that gives the mind strength. To say anything over six times is much better than to sweat and struggle once like six horses to pound it into your memory.

To get the necessary repetition you will need to learn how to use your time. And particularly your leisure time. You work say, eight hours a day; you sleep eight hours; allow four hours more for your meals and necessary physical exercise and for play and conversation; this leaves at least three or four hours that you have to yourself.

Disultory Reading Harmful.
What do you do with them? You read, perhaps, a great deal, but you read novels and newspapers, both good in their way, but both dangerous if read too much, for the simple reason that they are too easy to read and tend to dissipate and enfeeble the mental powers.

Now, suppose you set aside two hours every day in which deliberately to cultivate your mind. Propose to yourself to put in those two hours in good, hard work. You are going to lay up something in store in your brain, just as you lay by money in the savings bank, and it will be of quite as much use to you some day.

Select some subject you like. Suppose, for instance, you have always wanted to know French. Get a French instruction book; there are many good ones. Read over a page or so the first day and get what you can from it. The next day repeat this, always testing and exercising yourself by translating from English to French and not vice versa. Each day repeat until you know the matter by heart. And as you get the ground that is past secure under your feet advance a little farther.

Conquest Question of Time.
Your conquest of the language is then only a question of time. I knew a judge of the Supreme court of Massachusetts who when over 60 years of age, learned French in this way, studying only while riding on the train, amusing his idle hours to instead of reading magazines. Francis

Wilson, the actor, carried his French books on trains the same way, and made the other members of the troupe hear his exercises.

The years that you will have to live through from 20 let us say, till 40, can be so used that a great strong power or faculty can be made to grow with your growth. And what a satisfaction to know that you are doing something else, with the days God gives you than wasting them.

I mention languages first because I love them myself, and almost altogether in the cracks and spare hours of a rather busy life I have learned in the last ten years to read and speak in addition to my mother tongue, German, French and Italian. And I haven't any "gift" of tongues, either. It has been simply persistent effort, most of all, persistent repetition.

Work Soon Becomes Habit.
Nor has it been hard work. The beauty of it is, that which begins as hard work soon turns to be a habit, and, like all habits, begins to lead you instead of you having to force it. It got so that I was restless and unsatisfied without my daily language hour or so, just as a smoker is miserable without tobacco or a toper without his daily nip.

There isn't anything in life that is such an unmitigated pleasure and reasonable pride as this hothouse forcing of a habit you want in a mind that is prone and full of habits you don't want. It makes one feel he is a man, a master of himself, controlling in some measure his fate, and not the plaything of luck and heredity and environment. The best person to boss and lead by the nose is oneself.

Or suppose you have a leaning to chemistry, or physics, or medicine or history. What I have indicated above in regard to languages is equally applicable to these topics. Get a primary book and dig, dig, dig. Take medicine, for instance. I dare say that in four or five years, judiciously using your idle moments, you can, with a little brushing up under the instruction of a teacher, pass almost any sort of a medical examination.

Principle of Universal Use.
Even in art and in music my principle holds good. Of course in these branches much depends upon your familiarity with the works of the masters. You will have to take many a holiday afternoon and many a noon hour to visit the art galleries; you will have to frequent concerts and recitals if you would know music. But beside this much more depends upon your study. With cheap prints costing a cent or less apiece you can get acquainted with the works of genius. In the public library you will find abundant material also.

Better than all the alleged study that is going on in the colleges between frat meetings and football games is the study that I like to think is going on all over the United States in the leisure hours of serious-minded men and women. We have two great American institutions that are built upon this desire to learn among the common folk, the correspondence school and the Chautauqua. I doubt if all the universities in the world are really helping those who deserve to be helped, are really feeding the genuinely intellectually hungry, so much as these two American institutions.

Get yourself therefore in hand. Make yourself a point of power and not of dependence. Be somebody. I do not mean that you should aim to be somebody that the world respects, for often the mob is crazy and does homage to fools or arrant fakers, but I mean be somebody whom you yourself can respect.

TURKEY NOTES

If there are two toms in the flock and they don't agree, shut up one one day and the other the next.

The turkey hen that ranges far from the barn is likely to steal her nest a long ways from home.

Be sure that the turkeys have enough, but not too much, food during the breeding season—just enough to keep them in good flesh.

There is nothing better to feed little poult during the first few weeks of their lives than any good brand of dry grain chick feed, which can be bought in the market. This is convenient to use, produces satisfactory results and avoids the necessity of fussing with various concoctions often recommended for this purpose.

THE WORST HEADACHE RESPONDS IMMEDIATELY TO HOFFMAN'S POWDERS

This Is Guaranteed by Every Druggist That Sells Them, or Money Refunded.

It does not matter how severe the headache, or the cause, Hoffman's Powders will stop it. They soothe and ease the overtaxed nerves. That awful throbbing ceases immediately the powders are taken and safe relief is certain.

Some people seem to have the idea that all advertised remedies are "patent medicines." Hoffman's Headache Powders are prepared from the prescription of a noted Buffalo, N. Y., specialist in nervous diseases. They are guaranteed by Blackmer & Tanquary, and all other druggists selling them to not only banish any sort of headache, but will not produce any ill effect. To the contrary, they tone up the nervous system. A 10 or 25 cent package will convince.

POVERTY NO EXCUSE FOR DISLOYAL WIFE

"When poverty comes in at the door, Love goes out by the window."

SO runs the old quotation and its truth is exemplified almost every day in the records of the divorce courts of any city, or in the pleas of "non-support" entered by wives who are living with their parents because they say that their husbands cannot support them as they are accustomed to live.

Now, however, Justice Newburger of New York has come out boldly and declared that the wife who leaves her husband when he is poor has no right to seek legal freedom or support from him, that poverty is no ground for complaint of any kind, and that it is the wife's place to help her husband and not to leave him.

The decision of the justice is applauded by scores of men and women both, and is really a plea to the women of today to put the thought of "home" before the question of themselves.

To keep together a home should be, according to these men and women, of greater importance than any personal comfort, and the woman who has the real home instinct, whose unselfishness is worthy of note, is she who sacrifices herself for the sake of others, and if necessary goes out into the world and adds her earnings to her husband's rather than lose the home where they have brought their mutual loves and tenders.

After all, what has a man's income to do with a wife's loyalty?

Why should she feel herself bound to stay with him, to love and honor him only so long as his income is such that she may live on it in comfort?

She does not stipulate any such thing when she marries, does she? Yet half of the wrecked homes are brought about because the wife constantly broods about having to work so hard.

Because she allows self pity to creep up into her heart to make the dish washing and the daily tasks doubly hard, because she reproaches the harassed man with the cry that "she didn't have to do such things at home," and so strikes the note that makes their house, or their apartment, merely a transient place and sets up her parents' home as the real "home."

To the woman worth while poverty is the transient thing. She will always look forward to better days, and will make her husband feel that he is going to succeed, but even if he doesn't at first she will do her best, and so spur him on with the courage born of love that he will in time succeed and the shadow of want be lifted.

For poverty is no excuse for disloyalty, and the woman who leaves her husband to seek shelter with her parents, even though she keeps up a semblance of affection for him, is really disloyal, for the wife's place is to make a home for her husband, no matter what his circumstances.

Don't you think so?

The Ladder of Progress

WE are all growing into the habit of referring to this era as "the mercantile age," "an age of mechanical invention," and nothing more.

We flavor the words with a pinch of scorn, and we refer to the old days when men made beautiful works of art, wrote beautiful literature for the benefit of succeeding generations, with to thought personal gain or immediate reward of fame.

Then we sigh and say again: "Yes, this is an age of commonplace achievements. Art is dead, religion extinct, ideals dethroned. Men think only of physical comfort, personal aggrandizement and mechanical progress. We will leave nothing to the generations who succeed us, nothing of the centuries ahead but a history of material gain and noisy invention and automatic devices which destroyed men's ideals of patient toil for the sake of beauty and perfection."

And all this talk which one hears continually in Europe and more and more in America is rank nonsense.

Progress climbs by many, and various stairways.

Some are hewn from marble, some are built of wood, some are iron ladders. But the climbing is continuous and uninterrupted.

Sometimes the stairways wind and seem to descend, but it is only to make a more direct ascent farther on.

We are now on the ladder of iron, and there is nothing beautiful in its workmanship, and its top seems to rest on nothing but empty air. Yet it is secure and safe, and is leading to fairer heights than humanity has ever known before.

There have been always two great obstacles in the path of humanity.

These obstacles are cruelty and rudeness, or perhaps it is better to reverse the words, since rudeness has perhaps led to much of the cruelty.

As civilization advanced these two obstacles grew, like monstrous snowballs, gathering strength and dimensions as they were rolled along.

Civilization has led to the necessity for more and more rudeness for man and beast. Watch for an hour the traffic in any great city—think what it means. Think of the hot kitchens where cooks and scullery drudges toil through the beautiful summer days to supply food to restaurants and hotels!

Think of the early morning laborers, who are up in the chill dawn of Winter to carry on the industries which give us our cream for the breakfast coffee, our rolls and our newspapers and our warm fires for the morning comfort!

Think of the workers in the coal mines who supply our fuel, and of the stokers on the ships who bring us over seas in search of pleasure!

Think of the truckman, and the cabmen, and the horses, and the engineers and firemen on the trains, and a thousand more toilers who are working with might and main to keep this great mechanism of civilization running!

In the olden days slaves and rascals performed the drudgery of the world for kings and barons and rulers of all kinds. And they were beaten or beheaded if they failed in any duty. Times have improved a bit since then, but there are still cruelty and selfishness on earth.

When machinery came into the world's work it was looked upon as a demon, taking the bread from poor men's mouths. There are still thousands of people who so regard it, but it is a mistaken point of view.

Heralds of Freedom.

The mechanical inventions of this age, are the advance heralds of man's ultimate freedom from drudgery and of the elimination of cruelty from the world.

The people who visited Paris twenty years ago tell me the change in the condition of the cab horses there is marvellous. And this change has come about greatly through automatic inventions. So long as the cab was the only means of getting about the city companies made no effort to improve conditions. The horses were poorly fed and cruelly driven to meet the public demand for transportation.

After the coming of the underground and surface automatic lines there was a slight effort at improving the cab service, and since the advent of that blessing to the world, the taximeter automobile, a vast improvement has taken place in the appearance and treatment of the animals. It still needs betterment, but that betterment will come. In another decade all transportation in our large cities will undoubtedly be made by automatic machines.

This is but one sign of hundreds which point to the lifting of burdens from man and beast and the lessening of drudgery for humanity.

The great fuel problem will be solved by the invention of man before many years. Coal mines will be worked without the sacrifice of so many lives, or a fuel will be created which does away with the necessity of coal.

Mankind will discover a food product which will lessen the labor of cooks, and mechanical appliances will perform the drudgery now attendant upon the kitchen.

And man will find time, inclination and power to study the intellectual and spiritual realms and know the wonders which await those who seek.

All honor to the mechanical age, the age of invention.

It is the corridor to the age of spirituality and to a greater art and a greater religion than humanity has yet known.

In the Sheepfold

Never feed rye straw to pregnant ewes. It generally contains more or less ergot which produces abortion.

A trough for dipping lambs can be made for very little expense and no sheep raiser should be without one. A tank twelve feet long, four feet deep and three feet wide is big enough for lambs and grown animals.

If you find a lamb "roughly chilled" just after being born put him in a tub of warm water and pour a teaspoon of gin in a half pint of hot water down his throat. This will quickly put him on his feet.

Regularity

While the routine of the barn work may be adjusted to your convenience, strict regularity should be observed in all things, to maintain as much as possible the pace of the cow's system, secured when she is in full flow. If feeding or milking is delayed, the elaboration of milk is interrupted and the flow lessened. So, in order to get a full yield for a long time, everything should be done with the strictest regularity. The milking should be done in such a way that a cow will receive the largest possible satisfaction from the semi-daily event.

And I haven't any "gift" of tongues, either. It has been simply persistent effort; most of all, persistent repetition.

Work Soon Becomes Habit.

Nor has it been hard work. The beauty of it is, that which begins as hard work soon turns to be a habit, and, like all habits, begins to lead you instead of you having to force it. It got so that I was restless and unsatisfied without my daily language hour or so just as a smoker is miserable without tobacco or a toper without his daily nip.

There isn't anything in life that is such an unmixed pleasure and reasonable pride as this hothouse forcing of a habit you want in a mind that is prone and full of habits you don't want. It makes one feel he is a man, a master of himself, controlling in some measure his fate, and not the plaything of luck and heredity and environment. The best person to boss and lead by the nose is oneself.

Or suppose you have a leaning to chemistry, or physics, or medicine or history. What I have indicated above in regard to languages is equally applicable to these topics. Get a primary book and dig, dig, dig. Take medicine, for instance. I dare say that in four or five years, judiciously using your idle moments, you can, with a little brushing up under the instruction of a teacher, pass almost any sort of a medical examination.

Principle of Universal Use.

Even in art and in music my principle holds good. Of course in these branches much depends upon your familiarity with the works of the masters. You will have to take many a holiday afternoon and many a noon hour to visit the art galleries; you will have to frequent concerts and recitals if you would know music. But beside this much more depends upon your study. With cheap prints costing a cent or less apiece you can get acquainted with the works of genius. In the public library you will find abundant material also.

Better than all the alleged study that is going on in the colleges between frat meetings and football games is the study that I like to think is going on all over the United States in the leisure hours of serious-minded men and women. We have two great American institutions that are built upon this desire to learn among the common folk, the correspondence school and the Chautauqua. I doubt if all the universities in the world are really helping those who deserve to be helped, are really feeding the genuinely intellectually hungry, so much as these two American institutions.

Get yourself therefore in hand. Make yourself a point of power and not of dependence. Be somebody. I do not mean that you should aim to be somebody that the world respects, for often the mob is crazy and does homage to fools or arrant fakers, but I mean be somebody whom you yourself can respect.

TURKEY NOTES

If there are two toms in the flock and they don't agree, shut up one one day and the other the next.

The turkey hen that ranges far from the barn is likely to steal her nest a long ways from home.

Make friends of your turkeys, so far as you can, and it will aid you considerably in caring for them.

Be sure that the turkeys have enough, but not too much, food during the breeding season—just enough to keep them in good flesh.

There is nothing better to feed little poult during the first few weeks of their lives than any good brand of dry grain chick feed, which can be bought in the market. This is convenient to use, produces satisfactory results and avoids the necessity of fussing with various concoctions often recommended for this purpose.

THE WORST HEADACHE RESPONDS IMMEDIATELY TO HOFFMAN'S POWDERS

This Is Guaranteed by Every Druggist That Sells Them, or Money Refunded.

It does not matter how severe the headache, or the cause, Hoffman's Powders will stop it. They soothe and ease the overtaxed nerves. That awful throbbing ceases immediately the powders are taken and safe relief is certain.

Some people seem to have the idea that all advertised remedies are "patent medicines." Hoffman's Headache Powders are prepared from the prescription of a noted Buffalo, N. Y., specialist in nervous diseases. They are guaranteed by Blackmer & Tanquary, and all other druggists selling them to not only banish any sort of headache, but will not produce any ill effect. To the contrary, they tone up the nervous system. A 10 or 25 cent package will convince.

"When poverty come in at the door, Love goes out by the window."

SO runs the old quotation and its truth is exemplified almost every day in the records of the divorce courts of any city, or in the pleas of "non-support" entered by wives who are living with their parents because they say that their husbands cannot support them as they are accustomed to live.

Now, however, Justice Newburger of New York has come out boldly and declared that the wife who leaves her husband when he is poor has no right to seek legal freedom or support from him, that poverty is no ground for complaint of any kind, and that it is the wife's place to help her husband and not to leave him.

The decision of the justice is applauded by scores of men and women both, and is really a plea to the women of today to put the thought of "home" before the question of themselves.

To keep together a home should be, according to these men and women, of greater importance than any personal comfort, and the woman who has the real home instinct, whose selfishness is worthy of note, is she who sacrifices herself for the sake of others, and if necessary goes out into the world and adds her earnings to her husband's rather than lose the home where they have brought their mutual loves and hates.

After all, what is a man's income to do with a wife's loyalty?

Why should she feel herself bound to stay with him, to love and honor him, only so long as his income is such that she may live on it in comfort?

She does not stipulate any such thing when she marries, does she? Yet half of the wrecked homes are brought about because the wife constantly broods about having to work so hard.

Because she allows self pity to creep up into her heart to make the dish washing and the daily tasks doubly hard, because she reproaches the harassed man with the cry that "she didn't have to do such things at home," and so strikes the note that makes their home, or their apartment, merely a transient place and sets up her parents' home as the real "home."

To the woman worth while poverty is the transient thing. She will always look forward to better days, and will make her husband feel that he is going to succeed, but even if he doesn't at first she will do her best, and so spur him on with the courage born of love that he will in time succeed and the shadow of want be lifted.

For poverty is no excuse for disloyalty, and the woman who leaves her husband to seek shelter with her parents, even though she keeps up a semblance of affection for him, is really disloyal, for the wife's place is to make a home for her husband, no matter what his circumstances.

Don't you think so?

The Ladder of Progress

WE are all growing into the habit of referring to this era as "the mercantile age," "an age of mechanical invention," and nothing more.

We favor the words with a pinch of scorn, and we refer to the old days when men made beautiful works of art wrote beautiful literature for the benefit of succeeding generations, with thought of personal gain or immediate reward of fame.

Then we sigh and say again: "Yes, this is an age of commonplace achievements. Art is dead, religion extinct, ideals dethroned. Men think only of physical comfort, personal aggrandizement and mechanical progress. We will leave nothing to the generations who succeed us, nothing to the centuries ahead but a history of material gain and noisy invention and automatic devices which destroyed men's ideals of patient toil for the sake of beauty and perfection."

And all this talk which one hears continually in Europe and more and more in America is rank nonsense.

Progress climbs by many and various stairways.

Some are hewn from marble, some are built of wood, some are iron ladders. But the climbing is continuous and uninterrupted.

Sometimes the stairways wind and seem to descend, but it is only to make a more direct ascent farther on.

We are now on the ladder of iron, and there is nothing beautiful in its workmanship, and its top seems to rest on nothing but empty air. Yet it is secure and safe, and is leading to fairer heights than humanity has ever known before.

There have been always two great obstacles in the path of humanity.

These obstacles are cruelty and drudgery, or perhaps it is better to reverse the words, since drudgery has perhaps led to much of the cruelty.

As civilization advanced these two obstacles grew, like monstrous snowballs, gathering strength and dimensions as they were rolled along.

Civilization has led to the necessity for more and more drudgery for man and beast. Watch for an hour the traffic in any great city—think what it means. Think of the hot steamers where cooks and scullery drudges toil through the beautiful summer days to supply food to restaurants and hotels!

Think of the early morning laborers, who are up in the chill dawn of Winter to carry on the industries which give us our cream for the breakfast coffee, our rolls and our newspapers and our warm fires for the morning comfort!

Think of the workers in the coal mines who supply our fuel, and of the stokers on the ships who bring us over seas in search of pleasure!

Think of the truckman, and the cabmen, and the horses, and the engineers and firemen on the trains, and a thousand more toilers who are working with might and main to keep this great mechanism of civilization running!

In the olden days slaves and rascals performed the drudgery of the world for kings and barons and rulers of all kinds. And they were beaten or beheaded if they failed in any duty. Times have improved a bit since then, but there are still cruelty and selfishness on earth.

When machinery came into the world's work it was looked upon as a demon, taking the bread from poor men's mouths. There are still thousands of people who so regard it, but it is a mistaken point of view.

Heralds of Freedom.

The mechanical inventions of this age, are the advance heralds of man's ultimate freedom from drudgery and of the elimination of cruelty from the world.

The people who visited Paris twenty years ago tell me the change in the condition of the cab horses there is marvellous. And this change has come about greatly through automatic inventions. So long as the cab was the only means of getting about the city companies made no effort to improve conditions. The horses were poorly fed and cruelly driven to meet the public demand for transportation.

After the coming of the underground and surface automatic lines there was a slight effort at improving the cab service, and since the advent of that blessing to the world, the taximeter automobile, a vast improvement has taken place in the appearance and treatment of the animals. It still needs betterment, but that betterment will come. In another decade all transportation in our large cities will undoubtedly be made by automatic machines.

This is but one sign of hundreds which point to the lifting of burdens from man and beast and the lessening of drudgery for humanity.

The great fuel problem will be solved by the invention of man before many years. Coal mines will be worked without the sacrifice of so many lives, or a fuel will be created which does away with the necessity of coal.

Mankind will discover a food product which will lessen the labor of cooks, and mechanical appliances will perform the drudgery now attendant upon the kitchen.

And man will find time, inclination and power to study the intellectual and spiritual realms and know the wonders which await those who seek.

All honor to the mechanical age, the age of invention.

It is the corridor to the age of spirituality and to a greater art and a greater religion than humanity has yet known.

In the Sheepfold

Never feed rye straw to pregnant ewes. It generally contains more or less ergot, which produces abortion.

A trough for dipping lambs can be made for very little expense and no sheep raiser should be without one. A tank twelve feet long, four feet deep and three feet wide is big enough for lambs and grown animals.

If you find a lamb thoroughly chilled just after being born put him in a tub of warm water and pour a teaspoon of gin in a half pint of hot water down his throat. This will quickly put him on his feet.

Regularity

While the routine of the barn work may be adjusted to your convenience, strict regularity should be observed in all things, to maintain as much as possible the pace of the cow's system, secured when she is in full flow. If feeding or milking is delayed, the elaboration of milk is interrupted and the flow lessened. So, in order to get a full yield for a long time, everything should be done with the strictest regularity. The milking should be done in such a way that a cow will receive the largest possible satisfaction from the semi-daily event.

The Blancmange

Scald two cups of milk with one tea spoon of butter and a dash of salt; add two tablespoons of arrowroot dissolved in a little of the milk and two tablespoons of melted chocolate, or more; cook ten minutes; now turn this into two yolks mixed with half a cup of sugar and return to double boiler and cook for a moment. Pour this into a bowl and beat a few minutes, then fold in the stiffly beaten white of the eggs and flavor with a teaspoon of vanilla. This should be very cold before it is spread upon the cake and it should be just stiff enough not to run and yet not as stiff as a jelly.
